HMIP: Insights can be gained from listening to children in custody says Chief Inspector

Policy makers involved in reshaping the youth custody estate should listen to what children tell us about themselves and their time in custody, said Nick Hardwick, Chief Inspector of Prisons. Today he published a thematic report on the results of surveys of children in custody. The report, Children in Custody 2013-14: an analysis of 12-18-year-olds' perceptions of their experience in secure training centres and young offender institutions, published jointly with the Youth Justice Board (YJB), sets out how children describe their own experience of imprisonment.

Ending online child sexual exploitation: UK leads Global Summit in London #WeProtect Children Online

Delegations from across the world will come together to make an unprecedented statement of action to end online child sexual exploitation. Representatives from more than 50 countries, 23 leading technology companies and nine non-governmental organisations will take part in the two day #WeProtect Children Online summit, in London on Wednesday and Thursday (10/11 December).

PCCs' commission into the single counter-terrorism grant in the East Midlands

HMIC has published its report into the effectiveness and efficiency of the single counter-terrorism grant in the East Midlands region.

Police and Crime Commissioners act on call handling concerns

Essex Police and Crime Commissioner and Chair of the APCC, Nick Alston said: "It is clearly unacceptable that, nationally, over a million calls to the police non-emergency 101 phone service were cut off or abandoned before contact was made during the last 12 months, an increase of over 25 per cent. A failure of the 101 service is also likely to create extra pressure on the crucial emergency 999 number.

PM announces new global action to deal with online child abuse

The Prime Minister announces new plans to tackle child abuse on the internet at the #WeProtect Children Global Summit in London:

- New unit to tackle paedophiles on the 'dark net'
- Google, Facebook, Yahoo, Microsoft and Twitter unveil new technical solutions to block and remove illegal child abuse material online
- New UK database enabling swifter identification and investigation by law enforcement of child abuse images
- New global action to build law enforcement networks and improve child protection in over 30 countries

Council parking 'profits' surge to record high says report from the RAC Foundation

In 2013-14 councils in England generated a combined 'profit' of £667 million from their day to day, on and off street parking operations. This is a 12% increase on the 2012-13 amount of £594 million. £296 million (44%) of the overall total was generated by councils in London.

LGA responds to RAC Foundation parking report

Responding to the RAC Foundation report on council parking income, Cllr Peter Box, Local Government Association Transport Spokesman, said:

"This misleading RAC Foundation report is yet again based on the deep-rooted misconception that councils make a profit from parking. On-street parking revenue is spent on paying for parking services and any surplus is spent on essential transport projects. This report shows parking fines have gone down and that councils have become more efficient at running parking services. This means councils can spend the extra income on filling potholes and tackling the £12 billion repair bill to bring our roads up to scratch."

Osborne plans business rates review

A review of business rates to help High Street shops compete with internet retailers is among measures expected in George Osborne's Autumn Statement.
