£29 million funding boost to support unaccompanied asylum seeking children - 16th January 2018

Secretary of State for Housing, Communities and Local Government announces an additional £29m for councils to increase support to unaccompanied asylum seeking children. Funding comprises £9m for specific projects via the Controlling Migration Fund and £20m shared across all local authorities supporting more than 10 asylum seeking children. Further Controlling Migration Fund allocations will be announced in the coming months.

Apply for funding: £500,000 cyber security academic startups programme – 16th January 2018

Innovate UK in partnership with the Department for Digital, Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) will invest up to £500,000 in grants of up to £16,000 for innovative academic cyber security research which have the best commercial potential. The competition opens on 22nd January 2018 and closes on 31st January 2018.

New powers to tackle illegal waste and fly-tipping – 15th January 2018

Environment Minister announces new powers for the Environment Agency to block access to problem waste sites and require operators to clear both legal and illegal waste at problem waste. The government is also consulting on proposals to tighten the requirements for EA waste permits, improve awareness of waste licensing among householders, and provide local authorities with the option of fining those whose waste ends up fly-tipped or illegally dumped. Guidance on how the fines should be applied will be issued to councils.

Changes to domestic violence evidence requirements come into effect – 8th January 2018

Changes to evidence requirements in private family law disputes come into effect following a review of requirements set out in the Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Act 2012. This sees the five year time limit on abuse evidence being removed and the range of documents accepted as evidence of abuse being widened to include statements from domestic violence support agencies and housing support officers.

Sales of acid: Voluntary commitments for retailers – 7th January 2018

Home Office policy document sets out a voluntary set of commitments on the responsible sale of corrosive substances which the government is encouraging retailers to sign up to in advance of new legislation being brought before Parliament. The voluntary agreement commits retailers to not to sell products which contain levels of acid and other corrosive substances to those under 18 - applying Challenge 21/25 policies – and to promote awareness of the Poisons Act among staff. The agreement forms part of the Acid Attack Action Plan.

Independent Office for Police Conduct launches – 8th January 2018

The IOPC replaces the Independent Police Complaints Commission with new leadership under a single executive head, director general Michael Lockwood. The reforms aim to strengthen accountability and streamline decision-making, while increased powers under Policing and Crime Act 2017 enable the IOPC to:

- Initiate its own investigations without relying on a force to record and refer a particular case for investigation
- reopen cases it has closed where there are compelling reasons, such as new evidence
- increase the IOPC's independence from the police by abolishing 'managed' and 'supervised' investigations
- investigate all disciplinary investigations against chief officers
- present cases against officers in the police disciplinary process when the force disagrees with IOPC findings

2. RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT AND STATISTICS

Understanding the costs of cyber crime – 18th January 2018

Home Office research report outlines the activity of the Costs of Cyber Crime Working Group which, between Autumn 2014 and Spring 2016, worked to improve data quality in this area. Rather than attempt to arrive at an overall estimate of the cost of cyber crime, the report focuses on the development of an overarching framework for estimating costs, provides advice on the design of future research in this area and highlights key knowledge gaps, such as law enforcement costs of cyber crime. Findings from the working group also suggest that within the EU, Great Britain is placed the sixth most fearful of economic cyber crimes and the fourth most fearful of content cyber crimes. The burden of fear is greater for economic cyber crime than for content cyber crime. Victims, women, parents and the economically disadvantaged are significantly more likely to fear cyber crime.

Untangling the concept of coercive control – 8th January 2018

Criminology & Criminal Justice Journal paper published by Sylvia Walby and Jude Towers assesses three approaches to domestic violence alongside data from the Crime Survey for England and Wales to conclude that the concept of domestic violent crime is preferable to that of coercive control when seeking to explain variations in domestic violence. This is not to deny the existence of coercive control, but, since all violence is coercive and controlling, the phrase has little if anything to add other than confusion.

Proven Re-offending Statistics – Payment by Results – 17th January 2018 Data available at CRC level

Ministry of Justice publish collection of proven reoffending statistics for adult offenders being managed by Community Rehabilitation Companies and the National Probation Service to December 2016. Latest data for the October to December 2015 cohort of offenders being managed in the community by CRCs and the NPS indicates that 13 of the 21 CRCs have made statistically significant reductions in the binary reoffending rate when compared to the 2011 baseline. Two CRCs, South Yorkshire and Warwickshire & West Mercia produced a statistically significant increase in binary reoffending rates. It is not yet possible to determine what the final frequency rate of reoffending will be for this cohort as the year two contract waiting period has not yet concluded, however data currently indicates that 18 CRCs are currently in the deduction region and three CRCs (Dorset, Devon & Cornwall; Merseyside; and Northumbria) are currently in the payment region. Comparisons cannot be made between CRCs and NPS due the difference in the nature of offenders being managed.

Youth Custody data to November 2017 – Ministry of Justice - Published 12th January 2018

Upcoming research:

Motivations of offenders who carry and use acid in violent attacks

Criminologists from the University of Leicester are undertaking research commissioned by the Home Office, into the motivations and decision-making processes of offenders who carry and use acid in violent attacks. This will include an examination of the characteristics of offenders and their relationships with their victims, as well as how the substances are purchased and transported.

Gamification Testing with Body Worn Video Training

The College of Policing, in collaboration with the MPS, are using Home Office Innovation Funding to create and evaluate a new gamified e-learning package to support officers in their use of Body Worn Video (BWV). Gamification is the concept of applying game elements to engage and motivate people to achieve their goal. The research will be published in Spring 2018 used to inform future e-learning across the police service.

4. REVIEWS AND INQUIRIES

A Voice for the Voiceless – Review into the Provision of Registered Intermediaries – 17th January 2018

Victims' Commissioner's review into the Provision of Registered Intermediaries (RIs) for Children and Vulnerable Victims finds that police officers often undertake interviews without RI's present, and are deterred from requesting their presence due to long waiting lists and a shortage of provision. The review also found a lack of awareness of the role among the police and the CPS and inconsistencies in the way Police and CPS assesses vulnerability - which leads to variations in requests for support across and within forces. The review concludes that while RIs provide an invaluable service, the Witness Intermediary Scheme (WIS) lacks the managerial and governance structure required to deliver effectively. Recommendations include:-

- Transferring the provision of RIs to vulnerable victims to a single centralised national service
- Introducing a fast track RI service for very young children to reduce delays in ABE statements / evidence
- Appointing a National Lead Registered Intermediary to inform policy and represent the interests of RIs
- Require the National Registered Intermediary Service / Lead to prepare an annual report
- HMICFRS and HMCPS should inspect CPS and police on their work with RIs as part of annual inspections
- HM Courts and Tribunals Service should ensure that trials involving a RI are prioritised where possible
- Raise awareness of the RI role among judges, magistrates, CPS and police – including mandatory training
