PCCs are vital in driving police reform

Speech given by Damian Green on the 21 January 2014 to the APCC.

Police Accountability: Landscape review – National Audit Office

The National Audit Office has identified a number of gaps in the Home Office's policing oversight framework, which could limit the public's ability to hold elected police and crime commissioners to account. However, even though it has been in place for only a year, the new framework has the potential to be an improvement on the system it has replaced.

Police Recorded Crime Open Data tables

This document contains information on the content and use of the Home Office Police Recorded Crime (PRC) Open Data tables. These tables contain recorded crime figures broken down by offence type, geography and time period.

Police forces fail to probe millions of offences fully.

Almost 500,000 were “screened out” by 16 forces last year alone. New crime figures are published today following a warning they cannot be trusted. The UK Statistics Authority claims they will soar once an audit of the way police record offences is completed.

Crime reduction policies: a co-ordinated approach?
